Dear Friend,

Thank you so much for partnering with Our Neighbors' Table by hosting a food drive. The need for food in our community has never been greater! In this manual you will find all the necessary tools and ideas to organize a successful drive at your school.

We rely greatly on volunteers to help us provide healthy meals to families in need. Without your assistance, we would never be able to have enough food for the hundreds of people who come to us for assistance.

We are available Monday through Friday for any help that you may need for your project. Please contact Our Neighbors' Table at 978-388-1907 to let us know about your plans and we will help you in any way that we can. Keep in mind, community service hours are available for students who coordinate a food drive in their school, faith community or service organization. Please call us for details.

Thank you so much for your efforts to help end hunger in our community. We are very grateful for your support!

Sincerely,

Lyndsey Haight

Hunger Facts

To help understand hunger, many organizations use the term “Food Insecurity.” Households who are food insecure have reduced the quality and quantity of their diet because they do not have enough money to make ends meet. Those described as being food insecure with hunger are more seriously affected and are forced to frequently skip meals and experience hunger.

(Project Bread)

National

In 2010, 48.8 million Americans lived in food insecure households (32.6 million adults and 16.2 million children). This represents 14.5 percent of all American households (17.2 million households). (feedingamerica.org)

State

The most recent measurement (2010) reveals that 271,355 households (10.8 percent of all Massachusetts households) were food insecure, and nearly half of these households experience the most extreme condition, known as food insecurity with hunger. (projectbread.org)

Local

In 2011, Our Neighbors’ Table distributed 250,142 pounds of food to 9,744 households, averaging 187 families each week in our food pantry. In our community meal, we provided 12,946 meals to a total of 6,859 guests.
What Kind of Person Goes to a Food Pantry?

Many people in our community wonder why people need to come to a food pantry. They ask us questions like: What kind of people come to Our Neighbors’ Table for food? Why don’t they have enough money to buy their own food? Why don’t they get a job? These are all good questions. Listed below are some examples of who comes to our food pantry most often and why they come.

- A family with a mom and dad and two children. Both parents work, but their hours have been cut and they cannot find better paying jobs. They are struggling to pay for rent, utilities, healthcare, clothing and food. Getting food from the food pantry allows them to put more of their money to other uses.
- A mom with three children who has just left an abusive relationship, and is struggling to provide for her family.
- A senior citizen who is on a fixed income and is sometimes choosing between heating his apartment, paying for his medication and buying groceries.
- A disabled veteran who is unable to work and does not receive enough benefits to make ends meet.
- A young man with a mental illness who cannot keep a job.
- A woman trying to recover from addiction, just out of jail, looking for a job and trying to rebuild her life.
- A middle class family of five. The father, who is the primary wage earner, has been diagnosed with cancer and has lost his job. The family can’t make their mortgage payments and is losing their home.
- A grandmother, living on social security, who is raising her three grandchildren.
- An eighteen year old, living on his own, unable to find a job.

The people who come to us for help are the people who live in our neighborhoods, go to our schools and are members of our faith communities. They are our neighbors and our friends. No one wants to come to a food pantry and ask for help. It’s a very, very difficult thing to do. People come because they have no other choice. At Our Neighbors’ Table, we give without judging, and we try to treat each person that comes to us with kindness, respect and dignity.
Creative Food Drive Ideas

Use an existing event
Consider holding your food drive in conjunction with an established school event, such as an athletic event, a pep rally, a dance, class elections, or a holiday celebration. Encourage all attendees to bring an item for your drive, or ask the event coordinators if a donated item could replace or reduce an admission fee.

Compete for a good cause
Have a competition between homerooms, classes, teams or organizations. Have a prize, such as a pizza party or an ice cream party for the winners.

Create a raffle
The price of a ticket is a canned food item. Contact local businesses to see if they would donate a prize.

Challenge your faculty
Ask your principal or favorite teacher if they would do something wacky, such as let a student be principal for a day, or get locked up in "jail" - 15 minutes lock-up for each 100 cans of food that get donated. Ask them to come up with their own idea!

Use food to construct something
Make a sculpture of all the donated items, or divide into teams and have a contest for the best sculpture. Students can vote for their favorite.

Hold a Super Bowl food drive.
Have two collection areas - one for each team in the Super Bowl. Donors can vote with their cans of food for their favorite team. Great for playoffs in any sport!

Host a run/relay
Work with your school's Athletic Department to organize a 5K run or relay. Instead of cash donations, collect pledges of canned goods. For example, you could ask for one canned good per mile from each sponsor.

Collect multiple items or a single item.
Have each grade level at your school collect a different food item. See which grade can collect the most! Have a week-long food drive and ask for a different food item each day. Or just have everyone bring in as much of one item and see how much you can collect!
Make a Special Occasion
Ask your advisor if the school would allow a Pajama Day, or a Costume Day or a Crazy Hat day. If the goal of the food drive is met, the whole school can wear whatever item has been approved.

Host a movie night
The price of admission is one donated food item.

Ask Our Neighbors’ Table for a speaker
Invite a speaker from ONT to your kick off to speak about local hunger and the need for donations. Or, invite us to your celebration at the end of your food drive so we can say thank you in person.

Don’t forget to promote your food drive!

- Make daily announcements on the intercom during your drive. Be as funny and creative as you can. If you are having a competition, announce each day which class or group is ahead. Share a new fact about hunger in each announcement.

- Make a giant poster with a thermometer. List your goal at the top, and mark your progress each day (see “Helpful Online Tools” in this packet for a template of a thermometer).

- Display all of the food collected in a central location, so the whole school can see your progress. Have collection boxes in as many areas as your school will allow.

- Make posters and flyers advertising your food drive and post throughout your school (see “Helpful Online Tools” in this packet for clip art and sample posters). Make sure that all posters or flyers include a line which says “Please check expiration dates on your donations.”

- Write a press release about your drive and submit it to your local newspaper. Ask the paper to send a reporter and a photographer. (You must clear this with your principal ahead of time.)
Key Steps in Running a Food Drive

1. Identify a teacher, advisor or coach who will help you with your food drive.

2. Decide if your group will partner with any other group at your school.

3. Identify a person in your group who will be in charge, and coordinators to help organize the event. Make sure that everyone involved has clearly defined tasks.

4. Decide the date and duration of your food drive. A drive can last a day, a month, or even throughout the year. Many schools collect food during the month of November, which is wonderful, but pantries also need food at other times during the year, especially in the spring. When picking your date(s) for the drive, make sure to consult the school calendar and find out what other events are going on during your drive.

5. Decide what you are going to collect. (See “List of Most Needed Items” in this packet.) You may decide to collect a particular item or a variety of items. Contact Our Neighbors’ Table to get our current list of which items we need the most, and let us know what your plans are and when your food drive will be held.

6. Consider whether your food drive will have a theme (see “Creative Food Drive Ideas” in this packet).

7. Set a goal of how much food you would like to collect (how many pounds or how many items) and keep track of your progress. Aim high!

8. Choose a collection method. (Brightly colored and decorated boxes or bins work great!) Whatever method you use to collect food, make sure that is as easy as possible for people to make a donation.
9. Gather your supplies. For example, you might need poster paper, markers, flyers, tape, collection boxes, colored paper for decorating the boxes, smaller sturdy boxes for transporting the food to the food pantry, etc. Make a list of all the supplies you think you will need for your drive.

10. Promote your drive! Make sure someone is in charge of publicity (posters, intercom announcements, flyers, school paper announcements, newspaper articles, Facebook, school website, etc.) The better you publicize your drive, the more items you will be able to collect! If you’d like to include our logo on your flyers, please contact us for an electronic version.

11. Once your food drive is complete, sort the food, and if possible, deliver the food to Our Neighbors’ Table. (See “What To Do When You Finish Your Drive” in this packet.)

12. Let your school know how much food was collected, and thank everyone involved in your food drive: coordinators, helpers, advisors and donors.

13. Evaluate your food drive. Use the blank pages at the end of this packet to make notes about how things were done, what worked and what didn’t, and suggestions for next year. Be sure and fill out the evaluation form and return it to Our Neighbors’ Table!

What To Do When You Finish Your Drive

Congratulations! You have finished your food drive and collected all of your food. What should you do now?

1. Sort the food into medium sized boxes. (You can obtain these boxes from grocery stores ahead of time.) Try not to make the boxes too heavy so you can lift them.

2. If you have enough volunteers, sort the food into categories. For example, put canned soup in one box, canned vegetables in another, pasta in a third box, and so on. If you are short on volunteers, it still helps us if you can sort the donated items into three categories: canned goods, dry goods (pasta, cereal, macaroni & cheese, etc.) and non-food items (toiletries, paper towels, toilet paper, etc.)

3. Call Our Neighbors’ Table and tell us that your drive is complete. If you are able to deliver the items to us, it would be a huge help. It is important that you call a few days in advance so that we can have volunteers on hand to put away the donations. If you cannot deliver the donations, please give us several days’ notice so that we can arrange a pick-up.

4. If you can, take a picture of the food that has been collected and send it to Our Neighbors’ Table. We would love to post it on our Facebook page. If there are any pictures of students, you must inform your principal so that written permission can be obtained before posting online!

5. Congratulate yourself on a job well done. Sometimes, when doing a food drive for the first time, you have very high expectations of how much food you might collect. Try to remember that not every food drive results in a huge amount of food. There are many factors that can affect the results, including a difficult economy, bad weather, a competing event, etc. Many times a food drive starts out very small in the beginning and grows steadily each year. Our Neighbors’ Table appreciates your hard work, and we are very grateful for your efforts, no matter how much food is collected!
